

GARY OWENS

At first blush, the career of Gary Owens could fill several successful lifetimes. Voted the Top Disc Jockey in the Country 10 different times by Billboard Magazine and the prestigious Gavin Awards, Gary Owens' first job as a disc jockey was at KOIL in Omaha. As a teenaged announcer for Mutual, Gary handled big band remotes with the likes of Sinatra and Ellington.

During the formation years of rock 'n' roll, Gary worked at KLIF in Dallas, WNOE in New Orleans, KTSA in San Antonio, KILT in Houston, WIL in St. Louis and KIMN in Denver. He worked with Elvis Presley, Buddy Holly, Richie Valens, the Big Bopper and a stream of stars spanning the entertainment world. In the early 1960s, Gary was a disc jockey on KFWB in Los Angeles which holds the distinction of being the highest rated radio station in history - pulling a 5,000,000 daily cume.

For 19 years, Gary has been on the air at KMPC in Los Angeles. His career branched into television during the late 1960s with his zany portrayal of a dee jay on "Rowan & Martin's Laugh-In." That experience also produced two of Gary's four Grammy nominations for comedy albums. His voice is the power behind Roger Ramjet and more than a 1000 animated cartoons. He is the voice of "Wonderful World Of Disney," a regular on "Games People Play," and he has been with "Sesame Street" and "The Electric Company" since their beginnings.

In 1977, Gary was named Top Radio Personality in the World by the Billboard International Radio Forum. That was the first year the Award was given. Gary is also the first radio personality to be ensconced in the Hollywood Hall of Fame. Come May 20, 1981, Gary will receive his Radio Star on the Hollywood Boulevard's Walk of Fame.

Gary's writing credits run from "Bullwinkle" to three books of his own - "Elephants, Grapes & Pickles" which is now in its 13th printing; "Gary Owens' What To Do While Holding The Phone Book Book" and his latest, soon-to-be published, "Gary Owens' Chrestomathy of Silliness." In addition, he recently wrote the preface for a book by Fred L. Worth entitled "30 Years of Rock 'n' Roll Trivia." Gary has been a regular weekly columnist in the music business publication "Radio & Records" since 1977. He has also written two soon-to-be produced motion pictures.
