

PROGRAM HIGHLIGHTS

SHOW 834-5

AIRDATE: OCT. 29 & 30, 1983

JOHNNY MATHIS, the singer who wrote the book on romantic balladry, tells us how his intended sports career was sidetracked into music. He also explains why he thought the coming of rock'n'roll would force him to make another career decision. In addition, we'll be playing some of his biggest hits, including "Gina" and "What Will Mary Say."

TIGE ANDREWS, the tough but fair police captain on ABC-TV's "The Mod Squad" who played the father figure to three "hippie" youths who worked for him, recalls that he went into the audition thinking he was supposed to be the father of a conventional family. He also relates the "Mod Squad" approach to police work: no guns, no smoking, no drinking, and no drugs.

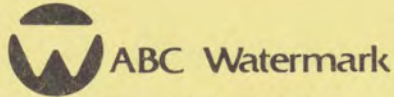

Our movie memory this week is "What Ever Happened To Baby Jane?," the classic mystery-thriller starring BETTE DAVIS and JOAN CRAWFORD.

We'll glide back to the final week of October, 1969, look at some of the events making headlines, and play the top three songs in the nation that week. All this and more can be heard on SOUNDTRACK OF THE 60s.
